Head's Message

Welcome to our 1st weekly newsletter of the school year. I hope that everyone has enjoyed the return to school. I want to start by extending a huge thank you to the whole Ludgvan community for making me feel so welcome in my first weeks in the role. I am incredibly excited and privileged to have been appointed headteacher and am looking forward to giving my all to the whole school community. I will be at the gates every morning I am able to and have enjoyed meeting everyone. If you see me please come and say hello.

I have begun a weekly newsletter as a regular means of communication for events and notices that parents need to be aware of. We will also celebrate some the successes in the school each week such as: stars of the week, golden tickets and any outstanding achievements the children have reached inside or outside of school.

Each week I will also update you on what the focus for our assemblies has been. This way we can come together as a whole community to focus on the values that make our school community a wonderful place to be. This week in assembly we read a story called, 'The Koala Who Could.' We used it to think about our school values and golden rules. Our school rule was 'Ready,' we discussed how we need ambition to be ready, we have to be ready to challenge ourselves to achieve something we are proud of, and for this we need to have a goal. Our school value was 'Evolution,' we talked about how we need resilience to grow and learn new things. We need to be prepared for things going wrong and being tricky at times, knowing that sticking with something will get us to a better place in the end. In the story the Koala learns to let go of his eucalyptus tree and take a chance being hopeful or things going well, not fearful of change.
