Friday 26th September

Head's Message

I have been very proud of the children this week. They have worked hard to put in place the lessons we have been discussing in assembly, are settled into new routines with their teachers and are producing some excellent work. This week in KS2 assembly we discussed 'International Day of Peace' which took place on Sunday 21st of September. The event was created by the United Nations and we considered how the values they seek to uphold are evident in our school values of Equity and Evolution, our school rules of Respect and the Fundamental British Value of Respect and Tolerance. We considered how we can create environments and communities that we feel safe, respected and secure in by demonstrating these values ourselves.

In KS1 assembly we read a story about a girl who was convinced she couldn't draw so did not try. Instead she got angry at adults who encouraged her, she was worried that she would never create something brilliant, it looked too hard. Until she realised that the most important part to being excellent is that you simply try without worrying about what the final outcome will look like. That way we take steps towards our goal that we can be proud of. We thought about how this worked in our school and decided that we should always demonstrate our school rule of respect, even when we are frustrated. We also decided that our school value of excellence could be measured by how hard you try, not what the final outcome is.

Important

Please take note of the new yellow lines outside the school gate, and refrain from parking on them or the pavement. We have already had residents complaints, and two near misses this week.

We are currently reviewing the gate situation and will notify you when a solution has been agreed.
